

Why should anyone have the right to bother me at my home? My house is my private sanctuary where the only people I allow into my home, through the front door or otherwise, are the ones that I choose to invite. I can think of no one who has ever responded to a telemarketing call. Telemarketers who find themselves out of work have only themselves to blame for knowingly choosing an occupation that requires bothering people who only wish to be left alone when at home.